

Occupational Standards and Curriculum Development

Sample Course 1: Labour Market and Training Needs Analysis

The participants will get a basic training on how to analyse and identify labour market skills demand in different sectors, sub-sectors, levels and regions. This involves finding and analysing existing information, such as research publications, labour market surveys and statistical databases as well as conducting own smaller research and fact-finding projects. Understanding and analysing the skills demand is the prerequisite for developing demand oriented TVET programs and occupational standards which will be covered in the next course (2) of this module.

Content, elements, format and duration can be customised to the respective needs

Learning outcomes

On completion of the training, participants can

- find relevant information on labour market needs
- describe and analyse labour market demand related publications and statistics
- develop own small qualitative and quantitative research projects to investigate labour market and skills demand in their sector and region
